

BODY-MIND CENTERING®
association, inc.

35th Annual BMCA Conference
June 22-26 2022

Denison University, Ohio
in person & online

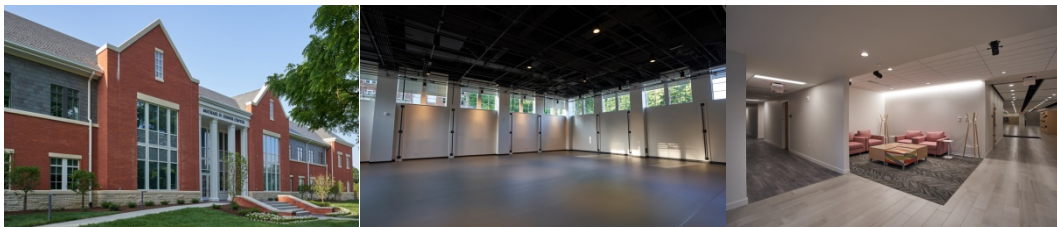

Re-Joining
the Circle:
Somatic Agency and Social Justice

artwork by Marina Ferreira

Denison University, a small liberal arts college, is fully committed to its motto: Whole Brain, Whole Person. Denison is a residential campus nestled in a small town (one main street) of 10,000 residences 25 miles from Columbus airport, Ohio. Denison has a long tradition of interdisciplinary learning and Somatics. The new Eisner Performing Arts Center, gifted by alumna, Michael Eisner, former CEO of Walt Disney Corporation will be the site of the 35th Annual BMCA Conference. The site host is Dr. Gill Wright Miller.

Dr. Gill Wright Miller, Professor of Dance and Women's and Gender Studies, has been at Denison full-time since 1981. Dr. Miller earned her PhD from New York University in Dance and Women's Studies, her MA from Wesleyan University in Movement Studies, and her BFA in Performance from Denison University. Dr. Miller's written research concerns public constructions of the pregnant body, healing from a developmental movement base, and body politics in general. She is highly involved in the world of experiential anatomy, esp. Body-Mind Centering. She has received several grants for her work. Dr. Miller teaches coursework in somatics, movement analysis, and cultural studies. Besides teaching somatics and movement analysis every year, her recent courses include topics in dance's cultural studies.

<https://denison.edu/>